To Whom It May Concern,

Ted Kingsley is an exceptional student that relishes the challenge of learning by practicing, analyzing and asserting the necessary effort into the process of thinking and learning to reach a goal. I have the privilege of knowing Ted because he was a student at Feather River College where I am the Director of the Equine Studies Program. He graduated from the Feather River College Equine Studies Program in December of 2006. Ted is a conscientious, hard working student and is one of few outstanding Feather River College Equine Studies Program graduates. Ted would participate in class and has the intellectual capacity to challenge the lessons while also realizing the significance of the information presented to him. Ted is a very hard and enthusiastic worker and maintained a GPA of 3.2 throughout his history here at Feather River College.

Ted was also one of our four student interns for our horse program. As an intern he had to organize, provide leadership skills, and have knowledge of the care of 150 horses, 20 cows, and was responsible for a variety of other tasks. Ted is a multitasking, intelligent student, and an enthusiastic individual who can and will take on challenges presented to him.

If you have further questions please call me at 283-0202 ext. 260

Sincerely,

Russell Reid
